

shared kitchen space

a recipe for conversation & cooking

project overview: this is a non-profit student project from the Design Academy Eindhoven in collaboration with the local organic market, where we want to create/build a shared kitchen space to give ground to a community based on shared values. Currently there is no place to stay and have a conversation comfortably, therefore we would like to facilitate this interaction through creating a 'kitchen' for everyone to use as they will!

benefits: the kitchen will be at the market every Saturday for you to share food and comfortably talk with one another. We hope to offer this community an opportunity to get to know each other better over the shared love for organic food.

This space is all yours to use and make it your own - we invite everyone to join in!

future outlook: April & May – We will be testing out different recipes, styles of dialogues and settings to gather your opinions in order to create the best possible structure for our mobile kitchen space that we want to build for the market.

May & June – The mobile kitchen space will be standing at the market every Saturday, free to use for everyone and adaptable to different needs and changes in the environment.

we need your help!: this is a free space for you and everyone else who works at or visits the market, to use and inhabit. Please feel more than welcome to contribute fresh produce to cook with, left-over food, kitchenware, your thoughts and your presence!

We are looking forward to supporting this community and creating something together!

about us: we are Miya and Hannah, two students from the Design Academy Eindhoven, passionate about facilitating conversations and strengthening existing communities through spatial interventions. We want to showcase different cultures, personalities and cuisines in settings that enable open dialogues with one another.
